

The New Victorian Home

Islanders Michael Jean and Sidney Smith have created a lovely home in the Victorian style and are opening it to the public for tour by reservation.

Cranberry Cottage was built in 2009 to replicate a Queen Anne Victorian-style home from the 1800s. Each room is filled with many period antiques that Michael Jean has collected over the years, including a vintage wood burning stove, antique wall phone and gas light fixtures. The Smiths considered every detail when building their new home with Victorian detail: 10 ft. ceilings with transom doorways, beautiful antique woodwork and landscaping.

For anyone who fancies the Victorian style, this is an opportunity to step back in time. For those looking for ways to incorporate Victorian-era antiques and design into your own historic or contemporary home, Michael Jean is happy to share her experience and design sense.

You can tour the Smith's home near Roche Harbor on San Juan Island by appointment 2:00—5:00pm daily. Admission price is $15 for a personal guided tour. Home design and antique consultations by request. Call 360.378.9569.
